Minitool Partition Wizard Enterprise Edition 7.8 29Q: Selecting a radio button by its name with jQuery I have a form that adds and remove radio buttons. The add and remove functionality works fine as well, but I can't select any of them using the name attribute. Instead of the following: I'd like to use: But then I get an error with a message of SyntaxError: Unexpected token I also tried $("input[name="+name+"]:radio").attr('checked',true); Any idea what I'm doing wrong here? A: You can get the radio buttons from an element like this: var radioButtons = $('input[type="radio"]').attr('id'); Then you can create a function to hide and show them, which you can call with a trigger event, like this: $('input[type="radio"]').hide();
$('input[type="radio"][name="options"]').show();
$('input[type="radio"][name="options"]').change(function() { var radioButtons = $('' e79caf774b
